Featured Speakers:

Friday's Keynote Speaker:

Ray Barfield, MD, PhD
Ray Barfield is Associate Professor of Pediatrics and Christian Philosophy at Duke University in Durham, North Carolina. He received his MD and his PhD (in philosophy) from Emory University. He is a pediatric oncologist with an interest in the intersection of medicine, philosophy, theology and literature. Ray's medical research has focused on immune therapies for childhood cancer (including bone marrow transplantation and antibody therapy), and improvements in the quality of life for children with severe or fatal diseases. His work in philosophy focuses on narrative approaches to philosophical issues that matter to suffering or dying people, otherwise known as 'people'. He has roughly 90 publications in medicine, philosophy, and literature, and recently published a book of poetry called Life In the Blind Spot, as well as a book of philosophy from Cambridge University Press called The Ancient Quarrel Between Poetry and Philosophy. At Duke, Ray directs the Pediatric Quality of Life and Palliative Care Program, as well as a new program called Theology, Medicine and Culture.

Saturday’s Speakers:

Richard Cowling, III, RN, PhD, APRN-BC, AHN-BC, FAAN
Richard Cowling is Vice President of Academic Affairs at Chamberlain College of Nursing. He is recognized for his groundbreaking research in unitary appreciative nursing. His publications focus on holistic nursing, unitary healing and mental health nursing. He is Editor of the Journal of Holistic Nursing. His many prestigious awards include the New York University’s Rogers Award for Unitary Nursing Science and the Martha E. Rogers Visiting Scholar. He earned a BSN from the University of Virginia, a MSN in psychiatric mental health nursing from Virginia Commonwealth University and a PhD in Nursing from New York University.

Janet F. Quinn, PhD, RN, FAAN
Dr. Quinn is an international speaker, consultant, and retreat and workshop facilitator in several content areas, including: Integrative Medicine and Nursing; Caring and Healing; The Way of the Healer; InterSpirituality and the Perennial Wisdom; Creating Habitats for Healing; and Spirituality and Healing. She is one of the earliest pioneers in Therapeutic Touch practice and research and has taught both all over the world. Janet is a trained Spiritual Director and Spiritual Coach in private practice, where she brings an InterSpiritual perspective to companion people from all faith traditions, or none, on the spiritual journey. She is Founder/Director of the Touching Body, Tending Soul program; founding faculty and Spiritual Director in Residence of the former Claritas Institute Interspiritual Mentor Training Program; and adjunct professor at the University of Arizona School of Nursing. Janet is the author of a book of affirmations and meditations for women entitled I Am A Woman Finding My Voice, and is also a passionate horsewoman, hanging out at the barn with her equine friends whenever possible, experiencing the healing potential and spiritual nourishment in the horse-human relationship. She lives in Lyons, Colorado. You can learn more about Dr. Quinn at www.janetquinn.com.

Kristen M. Swanson, RN, PhD, FAAN
Kristen Swanson is the Dean, Alumni Distinguished Professor at the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Nursing and Associate Chief Nursing Officer for Academic Affairs at UNC Hospitals. Her research focuses on caring, responses to miscarriage and interventions to promote healing after early pregnancy loss. Her caring theory has been used to guide practice, education, and research in schools and health-care settings around the world. She is the first Virginia Mason Medical Center Distinguished Nurse Scholar. She has been a visiting professor in the United States, England, Thailand, Taiwan, and Sweden, and is frequently invited to consult on strategies to create and sustain a culture of patient centered caring in health care settings. She is an alumnus of the Robert Wood Johnson Executive Nurse Fellows Program, an advanced leadership initiative for nurses in senior executive roles who aspire to lead and shape the future U.S. health care system.

Sally Thorne, RN, PhD, FAAN, FCAHS, DSc(Hon)
Sally Thorne is a Professor in the School of Nursing and Associate Dean, Faculty of Applied Science at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, Canada. She has a longstanding commitment to the intersection between informed nursing knowledge and creative professional action, and has played an active role in numerous provincial, national and international nursing initiatives. She brings the voice of nursing to various health and public policy arenas, and has published widely in the fields of nursing philosophy, qualitative research methodology, and the patient experience associated with chronic disease and cancer. She further supports nursing knowledge development through her roles as Associate Editor for Qualitative Health Research and as Editor-in-Chief of Nursing Inquiry.

Danny Broadway, Artist-in-Residence
Making rounds as a working artist, Danny Broadway creates his art with an uncompromised passion while seeking to communicate with people everywhere. “My work is the sum of my thoughts. I use my hands to create art. The work has a voice of its own.” Some of the country’s most respected art venues have sought to feature Broadway’s work. The media has rightfully recognized that “Danny Broadway makes you think about being an artist today”. Several business entities have commissioned Broadway to create original works to commemorate important events. In recent years Broadway has been focusing on servicing private collectors by showcasing in galleries nationwide and working toward museum exhibitions.
