CALL FOR ABSTRACTS
Nurses in the Middle East and Partners in Caring Science

The eleventh Annual Nurses in the Middle East Partners in Caring Science and Watson Caring Science Institute announce the Call for Abstracts for the 2024 conference in Nazareth.

This year's conference theme is:
HEALTHY CITIES - NURSES IMPACT

Now accepting abstracts through November 30, 2023.

Participants must register for the conference to have abstract accepted.

Please submit your abstract to partnerscaring@gmail.com with the subject "Caring conference 2024 Abstract."

Conference Objectives:

Unite diverse perspectives of human caring, transcending borders, religions, cultures, and boundaries for authentic caring-healing and health for all. Explore global human caring-healing needs and approaches of caregivers and how to create a community of caring-healing practitioners, transcending current structures and systems.

Health care policy recommendations will be explored that address individual and system caring practices that support transformative, comprehensive, authentic human caring for all people around the globe. This conference theme unites all health professionals under a shared commitment to offer knowledgeable, compassionate human caring to self-other-society.

Guidelines for Abstract:

Nurses and all health professionals, managers, clinicians, educators, and researchers are invited to submit abstracts and/or posters consistent with the theme of the Nurses of the Middle East/Partners in Caring Science conference.

Title: Limited to 65 characters

Abstract Content: Maximum 320 words including required subheadings. Excludes the APA formatted bibliography.

Selection: Abstracts will be competitively elected for formal presentation or poster presentation based on scholarship, creativity, coherence, and authentic relevance to the conference theme.
